

Update: March 20, 2020:

Due to the work Gordon Brush does to support a number of US Government agencies and our military, plus the janitorial brushes we produce that are used to maintain, clean and sanitize business operations throughout the United States, Gordon Brush has been deemed to be an “essential” business and will remain in full operation at this time. Please continue to check our website for further news as this situation might rapidly change.

March 13, 2020:

Gordon Brush is proud of making our products in the United States and has always maintained an extensive inventory of both finished goods and raw materials; we have over 8,000 different products in stock, totaling over 11 million items.

As of this writing, we are not experiencing any supply, manufacturing or labor constraints that are affecting production of your products or shipment of your orders; the Company is operating normally and at full capacity.

Please be assured that Gordon Brush is concerned about its employees and is taking every precaution to safeguard them during this time from a possible outbreak and spread of infection. We have also placed restrictions on employee travel in an effort to combat potential exposure and spread for customers and employees alike.

The Company is also concerned about the integrity of its products and is working closely with its internal management and production staff to prevent any possible contamination of finished goods shipped to our valuable customers. Our imported natural raw materials like bristle, or horsehair are always sterilized prior to our receipt, and the vast majority of other raw materials are sourced domestically.

Gordon Brush will make periodic updates to our website as the coronavirus continues to impact our daily lives. Please check at www.gordonbrush.com, or call our customer service department at 323-724-7777, ext. 0 if you have additional questions.

Stay healthy and be well.
